

Why should I care about customer journey analytics?

In this infographic we'll demonstrate the importance of using analytics to understand and optimise the customer experience.

Customer experience (CX) is critical to business success.

We know that bad CX drives customers away.

1 in 3

customers will leave a brand they love after just one bad experience¹

92%

will abandon a brand completely after 2 or 3 negative experiences

86%

of customers will pay more²

49%

of customers have made an impulse purchase after a personalised experience

Great. So how can I improve CX?

The answer lies in customer journey analytics.

Customer journey analytics = "the process of tracking and analysing the way customers use combinations of channels to interact with an organisation."

Gartner³

85%

of companies with mature customer analytics report a significant value contribution⁴

20%

Only of businesses with a low usage of analytics say the same

60%

Almost of companies say investing in analytics has led to an increase in customer retention and loyalty⁵

Companies that lead in CX outperform laggards by nearly⁶

80%

Can't we just create a journey map?

82%

of organisations have created a customer journey map⁷

47%

are using them effectively

Common mistake #1

Plotting an ideal journey map without looking at how customers actually behave.

Common mistake #2

Analysing and using only a small percentage of the relevant touchpoint data.

Common mistake #3

Assuming the actions that are easiest to track are the most important parts of the journey.

Customer journey analytics

Removes guesswork and assumptions

Uses data from multiple sources

Identifies areas of friction

Links behaviours with journey outcomes

How can I start benefiting from customer journey analytics?

Our comprehensive eGuide calls out the five key aspects of successful customer journey analytics.

Download now to get the full picture and learn how to improve CX and build happier customers who spend more and stay for longer.

content.apteco.com/unlocking-the-full-value-of-customer-journey-analytics